GAS ANALYZER

Refrigerant purity control of R134a and HFO

The professional solution to handle the risk of contamination

Checking the refrigerant purity before air conditioning service is crucial, as it prevents the costs of decontaminating the system and repairing the air conditioning unit. Mixed refrigerant can then be disposed of properly. This protects the environment and avoids the risks of potential legal disputes.

Information flyer for effortless comprehension

The Gas Analyzer is among most significant A/C accessories to control purity of refrigerants HFO and R134a. For the workshop it represents the professional solution and for all salespeople a very important business opportunity.
